

THE BOTTLE

One scorching hot day, Josh went to a beach in London. The golden sand glistened like a diamond. He sprinted across the sand and made a big sandcastle with flags and turrets.

After that, he ran even further along the golden beach. He found a bottle and picked it up. Suddenly he felt like he had entered another world. Josh started to see vague shapes and he could smell smoke, he could hear almighty screams and he could feel the heat from the fire. Josh opened his eyes and could see a he fire. His heart was thumping like mad!

All of a sudden Josh heard a cry for help he could feel the heat from the flames. He could see the orange blaze. He ran over and could see someone trapped upstairs. He soon realised he had gone back in time to the great fire of London because he was on Pudding lane and the houses looked old.

Josh decided to risk his own life and run into the blazing inferno of fire. At first he couldn't see anything but orange eventually he made out a black figure. Josh emerged minutes later with the girl and burns all over his hands. Then someone handed him the bottle and his eyes closed.

He woke up back on the scorching beach with no burns! Josh went home that day with the bottle, when he got home he smashed the bottle on a lamppost.
