

Travel Through Time

Freddie and Alex were very excited about the school trip. They were going to the British Museum. As they left the school, they looked at each other happily. They walked towards the bus and waited for the teacher.

They all walked into the museum, looking at all the things in the front hall. There instructor came towards them all. He had a long head, big nose, very pale lips, and his eyes were very close together. His hair stuck up and he had a very large moustache. It curled up at the ends. "Hello, and welcome to the British museum. I am your instructor today and I will be showing you everything there is here. But first we should have lunch seeing as it is 12:30

As they went into the lunch room, they all sat down and opened their lunchboxes. Alex and Freddie sat next to each other. They got out there lunchboxes and showed each other the ones they had.

When everybody had finished they all followed the instructor out into the hall and into the Kings and Queens room. "Ok everybody this is the Kings and Queens room you may have a look but no touching anything please, everything is very old and valuable and I will loose my job if anything happens to it" Freddie and Alex of course listened to him but that didn't last very long.

They looked at each other and then grinned. They started towards the hats, gloves and scarves that were in a glass box. They took of the glass case and took the hats, gloves and scarves and wrapped them around themselves.

Moments later they looked very comfy and warm. Suddenly the hats, gloves and scarves started to shake like mad. There was a loud pop and they vanished into thin air.

They appeared in a strange place underneath something large and scaly. They both looked up and saw a huge dinosaur. They gasped and crawled out (it looked like they were coming out of the dinosaurs bottom) and they saw the light of the shining sun. "What how did we get here" Alex said looking confused "And why is there a dinosaur " Freddie said with a weird voice. They were wondering how they got there and why they had gone to the past and why they had gone to when the dinosaurs were alive.

“Hey” Alex suggested. “How about we take our minds of this for a while so like digging for dinosaur bones”

Moments later they were making a big hole looking for dinosaur bones. “STOPPPPPPPP” Alex shouted “Maybe we should the clothes back on and then we might go back to the real time” “In the boiling hot sun” moaned Freddie.

When they had finally found the hats, gloves and scarves they quickly put them on and there was another load pop and they vanished back to the normal time. Everyone there was looking at them disgusted. There was a really big hole in the floor everything had fallen over. “Oops” they said guiltily

THE END!!!!!!!!!!!!!!
